

LEADERSHIP IN THE POST BREXIT ERA: GLOBAL GOVERNANCE, THE G20 AND THE POLITICS OF ANSWERING PUBLIC ANGST

COLIN BRADFORD,
INTERNATIONAL
ECONOMIST AT THE BROOKINGS INSTITUTION

UBC students, join us to explore the G20 as a global governance mechanism and the relationship of domestic politics to international leadership. Ultimately, global leadership is political. When domestic politics turn inward and when people feel left out of the benefits of the economic system, global leadership becomes all the more necessary, but all the more difficult. How do we go from Brexit to what?

Bio: Colin Bradford is an international economist at the Brookings Institution who is known as a leader in efforts to achieve international institutional reform and in establishing and strengthening the G20 as a global governance mechanism for the world economy. Please come with your questions and ideas.
